G. McQueen of Vulcan Chosen As The D.D.G.M.

Masonic District No. 11 held its annual meeting here on Friday in the Community hall. Both sessions were well attended by representatives of the various lodges in the district. The banquet served by the members of the Eastern Star was a splendid repast to which M. W. Leo M. M. Downey of Edmonton gave due credit in short talk after.

During the evening session G. McQueen of Vulcan was chosen as D. D. G. M. for the coming year, and the next meeting will be held in Vulcan. The address of Mr. Downey, Grand Master to the members of the craft was an excellent one.

Shower for Miss Wise

Miss Barbara Wise, whose marriage takes place in Calgary this week, was honor guest at an especially attractive shower on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 17th, which claimed Mrs. B. Hummel and Mrs. F. Watts as hostesses.

The spacious rooms of the Hummel residence were prettily decorated for the occasion with yellow streamers and large yellow horseshoes, a dainty miniature bride making a charming centrepiece.

About fifty guests spent a pleasant afternoon each making a block for a friendship quilt, which with the many lovely and useful gifts became the property of the bride elect.

Following the opening of the gifts, Miss Wise gratefully expressed her thanks and appreciation.

At the tea hour the hostesses were assisted by Mrs. D. Watkins.

A Badminton Club meeting will be held in Community hall club room at 8.30 Friday night, October 25th. Everyone interested are cordially invited to attend.

Quake Felt In Town

Some buildings swayed, dishes rattled in town and district Friday evening. The quake was felt more in the country than the town. One woman in town was so nervous she left for other quarters, as curtains and furniture moved.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "telling points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 4½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermostat action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty, Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steadily holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Get complete details at your nearest Ford dealer.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-bell, a girl, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the dinner table for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the middle of the evening, the indolent father loses all his head, and the family is faced with the necessity of a simpler and more respectable life. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. Nancy retires out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path Aurora Tubbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill, look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine's house. Mark Adams tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack needs him here. Nancy finds that she is homesick, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one, and Nancy writes home for her parents to send all the books they would spare and all the money they could induce them to let them have.

Nancy's parents and friends gave their liberal support to her request for books, and a sizeable box arrived in due course. Father Adam placed a sign for the library, and the Adams boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room look presentable.

Jack Nelson, Matthew Adams, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthew's uncle for the ride, and find that Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the swirling snow they collide with a bus full of school children, which was stalled across the road with its wheels resting in a snow-filled gully. Their car being wrecked, the children, Nancy stay with the children and do all they can to help. The next morning Jack sets out for his home in the blizzard. He succeeds in finding help, and the party of children and Nancy are rescued. As a result of the exposure Nancy's feet are badly frozen, and Jack is seriously ill with pneumonia, but both of them recover.

New Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XXI

The days that followed elated new lines in Columbine Nelson's face, for only a few hours after her second telegram to Mauchester, Jack took an unexpected turn for the worse.

"Shall I send for his people?" she questioned, when after a time that seemed endless a grave-digger doctor emerged from the boy's room.

"I should wait," he answered. "Jack were my own son, Miss Nelson, and I so far away, I should say the same. You see, if the child comes, he will be soon; and since his parents could not reach here in time to see him, isn't it kinder, and wiser too, not to harrow them with the knowledge of how dark the prospects look just now? If he lives through this night the boy will probably recover."

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know ask your doctor or the pharmacist or the head of the household. The discovery of "Aspirin," most of us called "pain" remedies were advised to take only of headaches and for the stomach, or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year after year without ill effects, have proved that the medical findings about it are safely well founded. Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest moving yet directed for the relief of headaches and all common pains. . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

She tossed him a mistle; but before Mark took time to look at it, Aurora Tubbs puffed up the stairs.

"What?" she asked, looking at Nancy? There's a steak, and creamed potatoes, and some hot-house tomatoes that come by express this morning from a sincere admirer in Fort Collins, whoever he is. Would you like apple pie, or a good baked custard? Miss Columbine says to order anything you want. My stars! Your bed's a perfect sight. I hope this praise you're gettin' won't turn your head."

Nancy smiled and replied: "I'll choose the pie, Aurora. And could you give me a slice of your wonderful string beans?"

"Sure we could. Why don't you ask right out to stay to dinner, Mark Adams? You might as well as sit there lookin' hungry."

Mark shook his head, endeavoring to appear grieved.

"You wrong me, Aurora. I'm heated for Colorado Springs soon as my elder brother arrives from home in the new car. Why to swap vehicles, and I dare say Matt would appreciate that grudging invitation, though if you ask me, he's already enjoyed more than his share of our nation's best food."

"I think he's gettin' awful sweet on her," observed the woman, so soberly that Nancy suppressed a smile.

"Som' I," said Mark, and grinned at Nancy.

Aurora moved forward, her brow furrowed with worry.

"I hope to goodness it won't make a trouble in the family, Mark Adams. 'Twould break your mother's heart if anything were to come between you boys. What are you laughin' about now, Nancy Nelson? It's no laughin' matter for two brothers to get sweet on the same girl. There was the Elton brothers up to Cripple Creek. They both fell in love with Sarah Peters and—Yes, Miss Columbine (as a warning sounded from below), 'I know you told me not to talk Nancy to death. I'm comin' now!'"

"And she leaves us," Mark said tragically as Aurora flew "in complete ignorance as to the fate of those unfortunate Eltons! I'll look in on Jack this afternoon, Nancy. Want me to take him some of this accusation?"

"I do if you want't for to bring them back. I'm saving every one of these absurdities to show my grand-children. Jack's seen the papers, I suppose."

Mark nodded.

"He says he feels like Lindbergh! The last of those kids goes home to-day, Nancy. It's wonderful how well they all came through."

"Isn't it? I was so awfully afraid for some of them. It makes me shudder just to remember how they suffered. Is that Matt bookin' no cheerily below the window? Hand me that compact on the bureau, Mark. I expect I look a sight."

The young man threw her a reproachful glance as he obeyed.

"I note the fact that you used no powder or lipstick on my account, Miss Aladdin. Say! Aunt En went to a big donation for the library. I left the books with Mary Taylor, but she suggested you might like to look 'em over here."

"I would. I can hardly wait to get back to the library. Juanita says—"

"All ready, folks," called Matthew from below.

Mark went to the stairway and looked down.

"Why don't you join us, brother? Nancy's been beautifying herself just for your benefit. She looks like the Queen of Sheba or Greta Garbo, or some one."

Matthew obeyed, saying as he passed on the threshold: "I was just thinking that two callers might upset the invalid. How you feeling, Nancy?"

"Excellent! And don't call me an invalid. There's nothing the matter except that my feet feel sort of—well, sort of brittle!"

"Mark Adams," called Miss Columbine, "you come right down. It's Matt here. There's half an hour. It's Matt's turn now."

"Comin'!" called Mark; and then to Nancy: "I'll drop in later and let you know if your brother's hat still sits his head, my dear. So long."

As Mark departed, Matt drew a chair nearer the bed.

"You appear to be submerged in letters, telegrams and the daily press," he told her, smiling. "How does it make you feel, Nancy?"

Her eyes lighted with something of merriment.

"I may sound ungrateful, but most of this business makes me want to laugh. It's awfully nice for every one to say such things about me, but I know, and you know too, Matt, that anybody else would have done exactly what Jack and I did. It just happened to be us—that's all."

"I'm not so sure," said Matthew gravely. "I think you're wonderful, Nancy."

Bicycle With Wings

New Air Weapon

Short Flight Has Been Achieved By German Inventor

From Germany comes the news of the first flight ever achieved by man-power alone. Since time immemorial man have been trying to conquer the air in various contraptions propelled by human muscles and the spectators at Frankfurt-on-Main saw a sort of winged bicycle actually leave the ground in a flight of several hundred yards.

So what? Does this presage a time when we shall leap on our aerial bicycles and sail through space? The inventor says so, but we are inclined to doubt him. Terrestrial bicycles, if you recall, became somewhat less popular with the development of the gasoline engine. It would be great sport to go pedalling through the air, but when one can sit comfortably at the controls and let an engine do the work—well, somehow aerial bicycling seems less attractive. If it came to a choice between flying flippers and flying bicycles, we have a pretty good hunch which the public would choose.

A Musical Instrument

You may take the word of F. W. Field, His Majesty's senior trade commissioner in Canada and instrumentalist, bagpipes are musical instruments, and Mr. Field is a Sassenach. In his annual report on Canadian conditions Mr. Field lists bagpipes under the general heading "musical instruments." Oddly most of the bagpipes imported by Canada come from the United States.

Thanksgiving Day

Has Time Killing Bull

Quite an experience was had out at Cresman farm last week in butchering a bull, first of all a twenty two automatic was used, this did not hit the mark, but only infuriated the animal. Then a shot gun was used twice by Albert Brett with no better result, finally J. L. Miller was called on who dispatched the bull with a rifle.

ON MAKING MISTAKES

We all make mistakes. The merchant, on checking his cash register at the close of the day's business, rarely finds that the total of the cash in the drawer tallies with that on the recording tape. Someone in his employ—sometimes the merchant himself—has given the customer the wrong change. He can recall a dozen instances in each day's business when customers have complained about getting the wrong goods, or being over-charged, or being compelled to await tardy deliveries.

Housewife makes mistakes. They forget the salt for the potatoes, the soda for the biscuits, the extract for the lemon pie.

Everybody makes mistakes. Doctors, lawyers, plumbers, tailors, teachers, sailors, dentists, grocers, laborers. There is no such thing as a perfect human being.

But almost everyone can get away with little slips without the general public finding out about them. The merchants put down their mistakes to profit and loss and not one is the wiser. The housewife dumps the spoiled biscuits in a garbage can, and no one knows about her mistake, but the garbage collector, before he tosses them under six feet of earth and havers little theirs under 800 or 9000 words of legal terminology.

But the poor newspaperman just can't get away with it. His mistakes stand out like a sore thumb on the middle of the front page or in the opening sentence of his cherished editorial. And all the other folks who make mistakes point the accusing fingers at the poor newspaperman with an "Ah, ha—! We caught you!" attitude that makes it all the more unbearable.

We deserve your sympathy, not your scorn.—Pietro Giacchi.
